Original publisher: Washington, DC: Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics, 2006-2007 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)156951006 Subject: United States -- Defenses -- Technological innovations. Excerpt: . . . S U M M A R Y I x i whether progress to further mature these technologies lay within DOD or elsewhere. Knowledge of where the action is for a given technology is essential to craft an effective science and technology strategy. Four Critical Capabilities The four Cold War vectors remain important, but have evolved against the demands of todays missions. Speed remains critical, but it is not about just getting there fast, but about adapting, understanding, deciding, and acting. Counter-stealth has supplanted stealth as a critical need, since it is U. S. adversaries who are able to operate hidden underground and hidden in plain sight among civilians. The capabilities needed for such counter-stealth operations are ubiquitous observation, recording, and archiving of difficult target data and being able to rapidly extract useful information hidden in massive clutter. Precision has expanded from hitting what you aim at into tailoring effects to the circumstance, including minimizing counterproductive effects. Lastly, tactical ISR - seeing deep - can be viewed now as the much broader challenge of mapping the human terrain, including foes, ourselves, and others. The four critical capabilities thus are: human terrain preparation, ubiquitous observation and recording, contextual exploitation, and rapidly tailored effects (with speed implicit in all). Why these four Because together they constitute a capability vital for success across all the missions and against adaptive adversaries. In particular, they provide the means for U. S. forces to operate within an adversarys decision cycle. In that sense, as illustrated in figure 1, they can...
