The waters of the great South Bay, teeming with fish, clams and oysters, were originally included within the Manorial boundaries. It was constituted in 1693 under a patent granted by Governor Fletcher to Colonel William Smith. In other meridians the name of Smith is impressed with no special distinction, but in the annals of Long Island it is borne by a group of distinguished families and is blazoned with a dignity similar to that which lends lustre to the Pilgrim Fathers of New England or the Cavalier founders of Virginia, the Bradfords, the Endicotts and the Standishes, the Berkleys, the Randolphins and the Lees. The fact that this Manor does not bear the name of the Proprietor but a title which is peculiarly associated with the royalty of England, wafts over seas into this new world a peculiar whiff of that feudal atmosphere of which it was a relic, and hints at the intimate personal relationship which existed between its Lord and the British throne. William Smith was born February 2, 1654, at Weld Hall in the little village of Newton, near Hingham Ferrers. The names...
